If you've driven past the Jefferson County Courthouse on a Friday evening any time over past few months, you've probably seen Jill Koren and her group of local activists displaying signs and asking drivers to honk in support of racial justice.

The Madison Area Anti-Racism Community Hub (MAARCH) for Justice, a network of about 10-14 local residents formed out of the protests related to the police killings George Floyd, Breonna Taylor and Ahmaud Arbery earlier this summer, aims to promote a dialogue on how the community can acknowledge and change systemic inequalities for black citizens. In addition to promoting dialogue, MAARCH has also been holding "Freedom Fridays" at the courthouse every Friday from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. in which members and other supporters show their solidarity with anti-racist organizations hoping to achieve equitable

Madison receives grant for struggling businesses

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

The Indiana Office of Community and Rural Affairs (OCRA) awarded the City of Madison a $250,000 grant through its COVID-19 Response Program Thursday to help businesses within the city limits and with low-to-moderate-income (LMI) employees stay afloat amid the ongoing pandemic.

The city announced the funds Thursday on its website and said it would match the grant with about $50,000 in economic development funds, making it possible for local businesses to apply for funds ranging from $5,000 to $10,000. Businesses would be able to use the funds to cover rent, payroll, working capital and other expenses that play a part in the retention or creation of jobs.

MCS changes policy on quarantine

BY COLLIN OVERTON

Madison Consolidated Schools made two changes to reopening plans under COVID-19 on Thursday following new recommendations from the Indiana State Department of Health and the Jefferson County Health Department.

The changes involve siblings who are quarantining after there is a positive test in the home and the time frame in which a student can return to classes following a negative test.

According to the revised plan, anyone who has symptoms of the coronavirus and tests positive or does not get tested is considered a close

Madison Area Arts Alliance raising funds for massive mural

Theme to highlight Kindness Matters

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

The Madison Area Arts Alliance has begun fundraising for the organization's largest public arts project —a 180-foot long Kindness Matters Mural — since the group was established in 2014.

The mural, to be located at Mulberry and Second streets in downtown Madison near the group's headquarters, will cost about $26,500 to create with local fundraising efforts matched dollar for dollar by the Indiana Housing and Community Development Authority's CreatINg Places grant program.

Depicting a river theme and highlighting a series of positive words and affirmations with an overall declaration of the community's commitment to inclusiveness and kindness, the group hopes to secure funding by Oct. 16 so the mural can begin in 2021.

"This is quite a unique opportunity for our community to send a strong declaration of kindness, inclusiveness, and community spirit through the development of such a beautiful mural," said Randy Lakeman, board president of the MAAA. "We are extremely excited to work with our creative community and the Indiana Housing and Community Development Authority on this large public arts project. We encourage the whole community to be a part of this strong and important community project."

Several local artists will combine to create the mural

Man gets more than 17 years for dealing meth

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

A Madison man has been sentenced to serve 17½ years in prison after pleading guilty in two drug trafficking cases in Jefferson Circuit Court.

Perry Chilton Gammons IV

The lengthy sentence caps an investigation into illegal drug activity by Perry Chilton Gammons IV, 42, of Hanover, who was facing multiple counts of dealing in methamphetamine and other related crimes in multiple cases investigated by a number of law enforcement agencies.

The investigation began in October 2019 when officers conducted a controlled drug buy from Gammons. During the operation, Gammons sold several grams of methamphetamine to a police informant.

Later on Dec. 6, 2019, officers served arrest warrants on a home in Hanover. Gammons was at the residence and admitted to officers that he had been staying there. While searching the home, officers discovered a black pouch containing more than 5 grams of methamphetamine with Gammons admitting that the pouch was his and that he had been dealing methamphetamine for the past year.

Gammons entered a guilty plea and was convicted of dealing methamphetamine, a Level 2 felony and dealing methamphetamine, a Level 3 felony. On Thursday, Gammons was sentenced in both cases to an aggregate time of 17 ½ years in the Indiana Department of Correction.

"This dangerous activity of peddling poison on our streets should be strictly punished just as it has been in this case. I hope this strong sentence will convince others that dealing drugs is not worth it in Jefferson County," said Jefferson County Prosecutor David Sutter.

Sutter noted that the work of drug investigators jointly investigating the case were key in taking Gammons off the streets.

"We have a great team working to seek out drug dealers and take them off our streets. As Prosecutor, I will continue to collaborate on and support these important efforts," Sutter said.

Law enforcement agencies involved in the case included the Indiana State Police Drug Enforcement Section Detective Mark Jenkins and ISP All Crimes Unit Trooper Jordan Craig; the Ohio Valley Crime Suppression Task Force operated by Jefferson County Prosecutor David Sutter and Prosecutor Investigator Gary Macdonald; and Jefferson County Sheriff's Department Detective Yancy Denning.

but the group also hopes for community participation — sort of a community wide paint party — to finish out the project.

An online fundraiser at www.Patronicity.com/kindnessmatters has received pledges for $14,265 from 63 patrons so far with just over six weeks left to raise the money. You can also mail a check to MAAA, 326 Mulberry Street, P.O. Box 322, Madison, IN 47250. To learn more about the project, call MAAA at 812-801-9863.

In addition to the massive mural, which will take up an entire side of a building near the city parking lot at Second and Mulberry, the project will also include development of THE SPOT — MAAA's Supporting People of Talent storefront at 326 Mulberry Street— just 42 steps from the mural where those in the Madison creative community will have a place to meet, create and gather.

Established in 2014, the Madison Area Arts Alliance works to build, inspire, and nurture a sustainable arts movement within the Madison and Jefferson County region.

Eligibility for the program will be determined by a Grant Review Committee comprised of members from the current Revolving Loan Committee. The program is expected to start by Oct. 15.

Qualifying businesses must employ 20 or fewer workers and demonstrate that at least 51% of employees are LMI. Other important factors for eligibility are the ability to demonstrate need based on the direct impact of COVID-19 and LMI job retention and creation that will be made possible with the requested funding.

"I am grateful for the support of Governor Eric Holcomb, Lt. Governor Susan Crouch, and the team at OCRA for their support," Mayor Bob Courtney said in the release. "In combination with funding from the City of Madison, this grant will contribute $300,000 toward the Mobilize Madison, Bringing Business Back to Business initiative at a time when it is most needed."

The grant will be a needed boost for hilltop businesses which have not yet received assistance on the local level. In May and June, 39 downtown businesses received a total of $17,225 from the Madison Main Street Business Resiliency Fund, the Madison Main Street Program announced on Aug. 11. Those funds came from donations from the Community Foundation of Madison and Jefferson County, the City of Madison, the Duke Energy Foundation and individual contributions from donors.

contact of everyone in their home. Any symptomatic person should quarantine with the rest of their household, the policy states.

However, if a symptomatic person tests negative or receives a diagnosis for another condition explaining the symptoms, no quarantine for close contacts is necessary. If not tested, a provider's note with alternate diagnosis will be needed for the student to return to school.

The second policy change mandates that anyone who tests negative may return to school without a doctor's note if they have been fever-free for 24 hours without the use of fever-reducing medications and have no other symptoms.

The Jefferson County Health Department released a statement on COVID-19 cases among high schoolers Friday, noting that a cluster of cases was related to "super spreader events," such as birthday and slumber parties. The health department is encouraging families to restrict such events to prevent the virus from spreading and requiring schools to send students home for 14 days at a time.

"The Jefferson County Health Department would like to encourage families with students in school to keep your social circles small. Curb things like large birthday parties, slumber parties and pickup basketball games. Limiting your student's exposure to large crowds, where social distancing cannot be maintained, could mean the difference between in-school and virtual instruction. Keeping our students in school as much as possible takes everyone working together," the health department said.

policies on law enforcement, justice, health and education.

Koren, an associate professor of English and program chair of education at Ivy Tech Community College in Madison, said the idea for the group came after she talked with friends in June about how people could get involved in the cause locally. A lot of discussion about involvement was taking place on social media, so she and several others formed a core Facebook group and began meeting over Zoom weekly. So far, some of the ideas developed there have turned into recommendations to the Madison Police Department for policy review, Koren said.

She stressed that the political views and actions of her group are her own and not those of Ivy Tech.

"You can always go to Louisville and protest or Chicago and protest. In fact, that's one thing I've gotten just by way of pushback a lot, is 'Why don't you go to Chicago and do this?' Well, because I live here," Koren said of the group's focus on local change.

" … That's basically what we're trying to do. Create a conversation, create a network of people who are interested in these issues and looking for local action that is meaningful and worthwhile," she said. "There's a lot of places you could put your energy, but to me I want to make change where I am."

While not the first anti-racism group to form in Madison, MAARCH's goal is to also create a network for activists in the community and support the Human Relations Commission's "One Book, One Community" reading program that attempts to get everyone in the city to read the same book, this time with themes of equality. While that project is on hold due to the pandemic, some members of the two groups do overlap, Koren said.

By Collin Overton

Members of the Madison Area Anti-Racism Community Hub (MAARCH) for Justice group, have been raising awareness on the Jefferson County Courthouse square with "Freedom Fridays" every Friday from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

MAARCH is also working with the city's HRC to review fair housing complaints, she said.

A Madison native, Koren remembers doing a research project in eighth grade with other classmates at Madison Consolidated Junior High about the history of black rights in Madison. She's spent the better part of the past 20 years teaching in Madison at Ivy Tech, Madison schools and Pope John Elementary with the issue of racial justice at the forefront of her mind.

"This is something I've been thinking about in the context of this community for a long time," she said.

Koren said the issue is somewhat personal since her husband, Emeka, identifies as both black and biracial.

A science teacher at Madison Consolidated High School and head of the science department there, Emeka Koren said the lack of black representation among teachers at Madison and across the country is noticeable to him and remains a problem. Even when he goes to Advanced Placement conferences out of town, he is usually one of the only non-white people in attendance, he said.

Emeka originally hails from a more diverse location in Buffalo, New York, but said problems like economic disadvantage for blacks and systemic racism continue to be a problem in Madison and the nation.

He said what that means for him is strict adherence to speed limits and traffic laws when driving out of town to avoid potential encounters with law enforcement, or, most recently, not wanting to risk exploring the tack factory with his wife after construction crews had left for the day.

"If I get pulled over in the city of Madison I'm not too worried because I know most of the police officers and I taught half their children, and it's not a big deal. But if I go out into more rural areas, you don't know who you're going to come across," Emeka Koren said. "But we know this, and this is a problem for us."

Emeka is currently in talks with the executive board of Eleutherian College, a former all-black college in Lancaster unused for education purposes since 1937, with hopes of reviving the building as a higher education institution for blacks studying to teach science and math. It would be the only historically black college or university (HBCU) in the state if founded.

He said producing more teachers of color is the best hope for hiring a more diverse staff at schools like MCHS, and that hopes to discuss those plans with the board in the next couple weeks to address funding, programs, building specifications and other necessities in making that a reality.

While not everyone agrees with her group's political message, Koren said the exercise has been an opportunity to connect with and start conversations with new people about issues of interest. The group now meets virtually every other week.

While Koren said she'd like to make more tangible progress in the coming months, she added that the discussions and a heightened awareness have been good first steps toward achieving changes in policy.

"I think one of the things that I keep running up against in trying to do this work is that people say 'Well, we've made a lot of progress' or 'We don't really have those issues in our town,' but I think you really have to reckon with your past and your town's history in order to make a different future," Koren said.

Young Rebels gain draw against Milan

David Campbell

Southwestern's Kaden Zellers (2) loses his balance while trying to keep the ball from going out of bounds during Wednesday's match against Hanover.

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Southwestern was unable to get the win, but considering the extreme heat and the Rebels' youth, a tie was good enough.

Visiting Milan doubled up Southwestern in shots but neither team could break through for a score as the Ohio River Valley Conference foes finished Wednesday's boys soccer game in a scoreless tie in Hanover.

Milan fired off 34 shots to just 17 by Southwestern, but only 16 of the Indians' attempts were on goal and all were stopped by Rebel keeper Brady McClain.

With only one sub available on a day when the heat index was well over 90 — Milan had no extra players — Southwestern coach Seth Shields was pleased with the outcome.

"We've been fighting having enough players all season. We were down four starters today and we only had one sub, and we had six or seven starters that are freshmen," Shields said. "All I wanted to do was play our game, play our style, and I think we did that."

While there were plenty of shots taken in the game, there were very few of quality and neither team had any real good opportunities to score — that is until the final five minutes.

Southwestern had its best chance in the contest when Alex Webster found himself behind the Milan defense with nobody between him and the net but goalie A.J. Roessler. However, Webster rushed his shot and sent the ball far wide to the right.

Milan had one attempt bang off the post and defender Salvador Hernandez had to clear the ball after it got away from McLain. The Indians then had two golden opportunities in the final minute when a scrum in front of the goal produced with two point-blank shots with McLain turning away both.

"That made things exciting at the end," Shields said with a smile. "Brady has gotten a lot of experience over the past two years and it was nice to see him have the confidence to come out and contest."

McLain finished the game with 16 saves while Roessler had five. Southwestern attempted three corner kicks to just one by Milan and the Rebels were whistled for just four fouls compared to 12 by the Indians.

Southwestern, now 0-1-2 overall and 0-1-1 in the ORVC, traveled to Class A No. 4 Jac-Cen-Del on Friday. The Rebels then host Shawe on Tuesday.

VOLLEYBALL ROUNDUP

True posts 1,000th career assist in Madison setback

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Senior Gracie True hit a personal milestone and Madison's volleyball team played its first home match of the season against Corydon on Wednesday.

The Cubs dropped the match 3-1 but True recorded her 1,000th-career assist in the match, a fitting accomplishment on senior night.

Madison lost the match 22-25, 25-23, 25-23 and 25-17.

"We had a nice start as all four of our seniors were in the starting lineup. Each worked hard and contributed to our win in game one," Madison coach Camille Crim said. "As we entered game two and on to three and four our team lost steam. We have a great group of girls who tried to work through the game together, but we seemed to have an off night as a whole. We look forward to a new game tonight."

Chloe Preocanin posted 13 kills and had 17 digs for the Cubs while going 10-for-13 serving. Taylor Harsin had 12 kills and 19 digs and was 17-for-21 serving with five aces. True was 16-for-19 serving with three aces, had 33 assists and added five kills, and Jenna Rohrer was 13-for-15 serving with three aces.

On Thursday, Madison picked up its first win of the season on a five-set victory at Charlestown, 15-25, 25-21, 25-13, 22-25 and 15-10.

"The girls had to make adjustments mid-game and won a hard fought battle," Crim said. "I'm very proud of their effort and for finishing out the match with the win. We are excited for our tournament tomorrow."

Madison's Gracie True recorded her 1,000th career assist.

Harsin and Preocanin each had monster games at the net, with both collecting 18 kills. Harsin was also 23-for-26 serving with three aces and had 21 digs while Preocanin was 10-for-12 serving and had 14 digs.

Brooklyn Cornelius was 17-for-17 serving and had 13 digs, True was 13-for-13 serving and had 42 assists, and Rohrer was 14-for-14 serving and had six kills.

Madison, now 1-2 on the season, hosts the Madison Invitational today. The Cubs then travel to Class 3A No. 3 Silver Creek on Tuesday.

REBELS SWEEP CROTHERSVILLE

Southwestern rolled to a three-set sweep over Crothersville on Thursday in Hanover.

The Rebels won 25-12, 25-13 and 25-20.

Ashleigh Ream went 26-for-26 serving with three aces and was 19-for-19 passing with six digs, Kylie Eccles had 13 kills on 23-for-25 hitting and was 11-for-12 serving with three aces, Autumn Harmon had six kills on 16-for-17 hitting, Elle Ford had five kills on 13-for-18 hitting, Halee Smith had five kills on 10-for-18 hitting and was 22-for-23 passing, and Hayley Fresh went 10-for-13 serving with three aces and totaled 22 assists on 75-for-77 setting.

"We played well tonight for our senior night. I thought our communication, energy and decision making was all strong throughout most of the match," Southwestern coach Chris Johnson said. "Ashleigh Ream was absolutely perfect for us defensively with no errors on the night. Kylie Eccles led the team offensively with her strongest performance of the season so far. Overall it was a great match for us heading into the Madison Tournament this weekend."

Southwestern, now 5-2 on the season, plays in the Madison Invitational today. The Rebels then travel to Charlestown on Tuesday.

SOCCER ROUNDUP

Madison soccer picks up 1st win on turf field

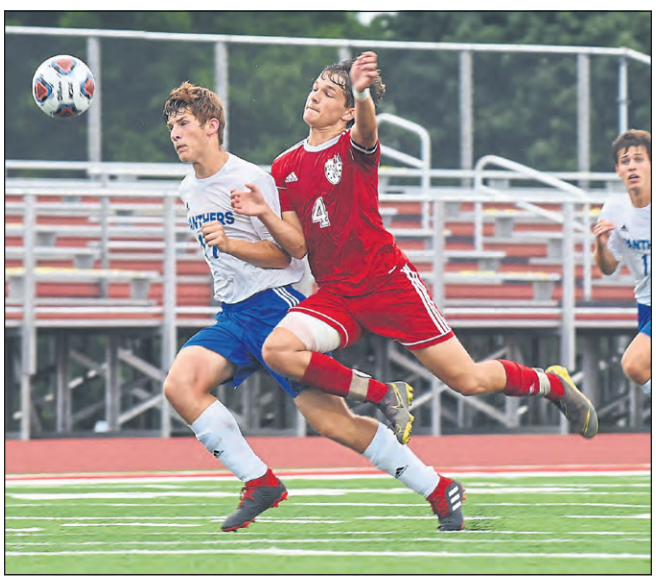
BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Madison boys soccer team picked up its first win on the school's new turf field, 2-1 victory over Hoosier Hills Conference rival Jennings County at Cub Field on Thursday.

Madison has played its home games at the junior high school for the past 15 years but a brand-new $1.5 million artificial surface at the football field also allows for soccer games. The Cubs hit the turf on Thursday and used a little help to get the win.

Madison coach Kyle Bipes made a change in his lineup and it paid instant dividends when junior Jack Kelsey, one of the Cubs' anchors on defense, scored his first goal of the season. The Cubs also got an own-goal by Jennings County for its final score.

Madison, now 2-1 overall on the season and 1-0 in the HHC, travels to Franklin today. The Cubs then head to Charlestown on Monday.



David Campbell

Madison's Will Heitz (4) battles with Jennings County's Ian Sawyer (17) during Thursday's game on the new turf surface at Cub Field in Madison.

SWITZ GIRLS SHUT OUT SOUTHWESTERN

Switzerland County's girls soccer team remained unbeaten on the season with a 3-0 win over Southwestern Wednesday in Vevay.

Halle Archer scored two goals and Kenzie Taylor added a third for the Pacers in the win.

"It was a hot evening for both teams, especially with only a couple subs apiece. We continue to learn and grow as individual players and as a team," Southwestern coach Nancy Totten said. "Although we did not score, all our girls played hard throughout the game. Julia Worcester and Kaylee Deweese played especially well and with heart."

Switzerland, now 3-0 overall and in the Ohio River Valley Conference, hosts Scottsburg on Monday. Southwestern, now 0-2-1 overall and 0-1 in the ORVC, travels to Rising Sun on Monday.

SHAWE FALLS LATE TO RIPLEY

Shawe jumped out to an early 2-0 lead but couldn't hold on, falling 4-3 to South Ripley in boys soccer Wednesday at home.

Jacob Hertz scored two goals in the game's first 20 minutes off assists by Davis Grote and Gage Dermon to stake the Hilltoppers to a 2-0 lead.

But South Ripley reeled off three-straight goals — all on Zach Gentile's hat trick — to race into the lead. Grote put the ball into the net with just six seconds left in the half to knot the score 3-3.

There wasn't nearly as much action in the second half as both defenses tightened down, but Gentile was able to score his fourth goal of the match in the 61st minute — his 13th of the season — for what proved to be the game-winner.

"I would say tonight's outcome was disappointing. After getting up 2-0 early, we let the momentum shift really quickly," Shawe coach Cameron Willoughby said. "We have to do a better job of holding on to the momentum and controlling the game from that point on. We didn't do a great job of that."

Shawe falls to 2-3 overall and 0-1 in Ohio River Valley Conference play. The Hilltoppers travel to Southwestern on Tuesday.

PACERS LOSE AT RISING SUN

Switzerland County's boys soccer team lost 4-2 at Rising Sun on Thursday.

Switzerland, now 0-2 overall and in the Ohio River Valley Conference, hosts South Ripley on Tuesday.

GOLF ROUNDUP

Switzerland County scores dual-meet victory over Dearborn

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Switzerland County's girls golf team picked up a dual-meet win at Kelly's Hidden Acres Golf Course near Milan on Wednesday.

The Pacers shot a 240 as a team, 11 strokes better than South Dearborn.

"I am so proud of the girls. They have continued to work hard at every practice and meets," Switzerland coach Natalie Wheeler said. "We have now dropped 37 strokes off of our team score since the first meet. That is huge. I get so excited to see how proud they are of themselves now that they are seeing the improvements and their scores are starting to lower."

Three Pacers carded season-bests in the meet. Hailey Hines led the team with a 51, Lily Williams had a 56 and Brooklyn Flanders shot a 64, which was also a personal best. Kenna Perkins added a 69.

Switzerland returns to action on Monday against Oldenburg at Hillcrest Country Club in Batesville.

CUBS DROP CLOSE MATCH AT EAST

Madison girls golf took a nine-stroke loss to Columbus East, 184-195, at Otter Creek Golf Course on Thursday.

The Cubs' Keara Eder was the low-medalist with a 38 and Jenna Imel added a 43. Grace Bronkella shot 55, Gracie Gasaway had a 59 and Ally Skirvin had a 62.

"I can't be too upset with this loss. That course has a lot of water, tall rough, and OB, so it was probably our best team nine to date," Madison coach Jake Shockley said. "I still think we have a ways to go to reach our potential, but shooting our lowest nine-hole score, away, with a lot of penalty trouble is very encouraging."

Madison returns to action today in the New Albany Invitational. The Cubs then travel to Jennings County on Monday.

SHAWE 3RD AT SCOTTSBURG

Shawe girls golf placed third in a three-way meet at Westwood Golf Course in Scottsburg on Wednesday.

The Hilltoppers shot a 226, 25 strokes back of winner Scottsburg, which had a 201. Jennings County was third with a 205.

Kira Wells shot a 48 to lead Shawe, Gia Craig had a 57, Yolett Perez carded a 59 and Bailey Kilgore a 62.

"This was a good chance to play a couple of sectional foes and see how we stack up. Due to traveling for a 4:30 start, we literally went from the bus to the tee box, so I wasn't surprised by our slow start," Shawe coach David Hertz said. "Kira settled in by her third hole and played pretty consistently thereafter. Gia and Yolett continued to make solid strides in their games by not letting mistakes affect them from hole to hole. Bailey probably struggled the most as the heat and fatigue seemed to take a toll on her. Luckily we have lots of opportunities to be on the course before the conference tournament on Sept. 5."

Shawe returns to action on Tuesday when it travels to Henryville and Wednesday when it competes at Switzerland County.

CARROLL SWEPT AT OWEN

Carroll County's golf teams were swept in a pair of dual meets against Owen County at Fairway Golf Course on Wednesday in Wheatley, Kentucky.

The boys lost 165-181 but Carroll's Kennedy Daigle claimed low-medalist honors with a 38. Owen's Cade Maddox, Joe Hamilton and Charlie Baumann each shot 39 to lead the Rebels.

The girls lost 171-220. Owen's Lilly Baumann was the medalist with a 42.

Carroll returns to action on Wednesday, Sept. 2 , to host Trimble County and Walton-Verona.

Retirement is all about cash flow!

Layin' It on the Line

By Stephen Dybwad
Retirement Planning/
Wealth Management

"It is not just about retiring; it is about knowing when to retire"
– Stephen Dybwad

When folks seek to retire, one of the most important objectives to evaluate is their Social Security benefits. Social Security is an excellent resource because it provides a guaranteed check for life.

However, if you file your benefit to early (62), you could face up to a 30% reduction in your check. If you decide to delay taking your benefit till age 70, you could receive up to 132% more. The downside is that if you delay, you are missing out on all the prior years' payments, and if you passed away on your 72nd birthday, you were unable to enjoy any cash flow from the Social Security system.

There are three main reasons why people wait:

1. To receive more income from their Social Security
2. To leave a more substantial benefit amount to their spouse
3. To hedge against inflation and purchasing power.

There are many other reasons, but these are just some of the most common. Trying to "time" filing for your benefits can be tricky; the main goal is to get the most cash flow as soon as possible—this way, the money can be enjoyed and help aid in the overall retirement income plan.

Social Security is a GIANT annuity; it provides a guaranteed stream of lifetime income benefits.

The earlier you decide to file, the lower the benefit amount since that benefit amount will be paid out for a longer period of time. If you file at 62 and have a life expectancy of 82, that is twenty years that the Social Security Administration will provide income payments to you.

Adding an individually-owned annuity to your retirement plan can help make your Social Security filing decision easier, knowing that you have two guaranteed streams of income in which to rely upon.

There are three main benefits to owning your annuity in conjunction with your government annuity, Social Security:

1. It provides additional income that may enable you to retire sooner than you originally planned.
2. It can help you stay ahead of inflation by adding an additional stream of potential increasing income.
3. It provides a Joint Income so that when a spouse passes, the surviving spouse could have the same level of income for the rest of their life.

Let us examine the third benefit; If a married couple has two Social Security checks each month and one of them passes, the surviving spouse is only able to keep ONE benefit check, not both. This can pose a huge cash flow issue in the future. However, if they own an annuity with lifetime income, that income may be able to replace the lost Social Security benefit. They were allowing the surviving spouse to have the same lifestyle.

There is also another added benefit to having an annuity within your retirement plan. While receiving the guaranteed lifetime benefit and protecting your spouse, you will also be fulfilling some, if not all, of your Required Minimum Distribution (RMD) from qualified retirement accounts.

Since 2020, the government has bumped up the RMD age to 72 for those who were not already subject to RMD's. Essentially, you are forced by the government to start spending down your qualified retirement accounts (excluding Roth's) so that you can pay your income taxes on that money.

Ask yourself this: "If the government is going to force me to withdraw money from my retirement account, why wouldn't I want that income guaranteed for life?" An annuity can provide that solution and many others. Far too often, annuities are misunderstood or not fully understood.

Annuities are the only financial resource that can provide a guaranteed life income (pensions are also annuities). Who are the happiest people in retirement?

Those worried about when the next market crash is going to occur and if they will have enough money to survive or those with a guaranteed lifetime paycheck?

Virus concerns cancel Candlelight Tour, Cookie Caper

BY COURIER STAFF WRITER

The Christmas season may be months away but concerns over the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic have forced local organizers to halt plans for two of Madison's most popular holiday traditions.

The 2020 Nights before Christmas Candlelight Tour of Homes and Great Cookie Caper have both been canceled due to coronavirus concerns.

"In light of the current conditions concerning the coronavirus, the Nights before Christmas Candlelight Tour of Homes Committee members have decided to postpone this year's tour to 2021," said Tour Coordinator Marci Jones. "We made this decision with heavy hearts, but believe it is the best decision for the safety of our homeowners, volunteers and our community."

The annual tour, which has routinely been attended by 3,000 to 3,500 patrons over two weekends since 1981, features private homes, historic sites, a local church and a museum all decorated in the spirit of Christmas and the holiday season."

Uncertaintly over COVID-19 made it too risky for crowds — which often wait in long lines to view some homes — as well as the potential for exposure to home owners and volunteers.

The Great Cookie Caper, held in conjunction with the Candlelight Tour, will also be postponed due to health concerns. The loss of both events will be a financial hit to the organizations they support.

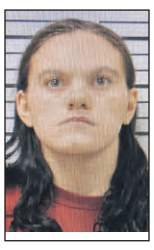
Each year a different charitable organization is selected to be the recipient of all proceeds from the Cookie Caper. The selected organization must provide half of the cookies as well as staff the event and handle all clean-up. In nine years of existence, the Cookie Caper has raised nearly $31,000 for local organizations.

Organizers said patrons can mark their calendars for 2021 because both evens plan to be back. Tour dates for 2021 are Nov. 26 & 27 and Dec. 3 & 4.

Multiple felonies charged in abuse case

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

A Madison woman has been charged with 22 felonies and one misdemeanor in the alleged abuse of a child based on an investigation by the Jefferson County Sheriff's office.



Kayla Michell Crawn

Kayla M. Crawn, 21, of Madison, has been charged with 20 counts of criminal confinement and one count of battery, all Level 5 felonies; one count of criminal confinement causing bodily injury, a Level 4 felony; and misdemeanor neglect of a dependent.

On Aug. 25, Jefferson County Sheriff's Deputy Linton Spry began an investigation into an alleged incident of child abuse. During the course of the investigation he obtained a search warrant for a residence in Jefferson County and collected evidence associated with the crime before consulting Detective Yancy Denning in the investigation.

Denning conducted an interview with the suspect on Aug. 26. During that interview, Crawn admitted to tying a child down in a car seat as a form of punishment as many as 20 times, each time leaving the child tied in the seat for up to 30 minutes at a time.

After the interview, Denning placed Crawn under arrest and she was lodged in the Jefferson County Jail where she is being held without bond awaiting an initial hearing.

The Jefferson County Sheriff's Department was assisted by the Jefferson County Indiana Division of Child Services, the Jefferson County Prosecutors Office and the Childrens Advocacy Center of Southeastern Indiana.

Prosecutor raising awareness in National Child Support Month

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Organizations involved with the child support system in Jefferson County — including the prosecutor's office — have partnered in August to support Hoosier families and bring attention to Indiana's child support programming and resources as part of National Child Support Awareness Month.

David Sutter

The Indiana Child Support Program is overseen by the Child Support Bureau of the Indiana Department of Child Services, which contracts with local prosecutor's offices to administer the program and provide enforcement of child support orders.

"As your county prosecutor, I participate in this program, and my office takes the responsibility seriously," said Jefferson County Prosecutor David Sutter. "We provide a variety of services at no cost to participants at the local office designed to get child support dollars to families."

Sutter said the services include:

- Locating non-custodial parents
- Establishing paternity
- Establishing and modifying child support and medical support orders
- Enforcing payment of child support

Sutter noted that approximately 250,000 families participate in Indiana's Child Support Program, but experts estimate that's only half the number of families that could benefit. Locally, Jefferson County serves approximately 900 families and last year the prosecutor's office collected more than $2.3 million in child support.

"This represented the highest percentage increase in collections in all 92 counties in Indiana," Sutter said. "I hope that by promoting the services of the child support program, we can assist more local families with the support they are owed. We make it easy to enroll. You can get started by contacting our office in person."

The prosecutor's office is located 315 East Second Street in Madison, the phone number is 812-265-8932 and the website is https://jeffersoncounty.in.gov/260/Prosecutors-Office. For more information visit the Child Support Program at www.childsupport.in.gov or call the Kidsline, Indiana's child support customer service center, at 800-840-8757

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: Since you wrote "Ask Me Anything," I'm taking you up on it.

I had known a lady for about a year when I finally asked her out. I was shocked when she said yes. The date was to be a game of miniature golf followed by a walk on the beach. Long story short, she stopped by my house first, and we never made it to miniature golf or the beach. Instead, I had a few of the best hours of my life.

After a couple of similar "dates," I invited her to move in with me, and she accepted. Our relationship was close to perfect. She was extremely caring and affectionate. I didn't want to bring up marriage too soon, but I did tell her I wanted to spend the rest of my life with her, and she said the same to me.

This continued for about three months. But then, one Sunday, she got up very early to go spend the day with her mother out of town. As she was getting ready, I hugged her and said, "I am happy you enjoy spending time with your mom, but it would be great if you would plan it a little later so we could enjoy some time together before you have to leave."

Later that afternoon, she came back and was enraged that I'd said anything about her spending time with her mom. She hurriedly packed her things and left. That was 10 months ago. I tried several times to call her, but she wouldn't answer. And she didn't reply to any of the several emails I sent. I simply cannot fathom what caused her to go from the most loving person I've ever known to wanting nothing to do with me. Should I give up on her altogether? If not, what can I do to get her back? — Whiplashed

Dear Whiplashed: When things go from 0 to 100 so quickly, it's a sign you're headed for a crash — in your case, a hit and run. With the way she split so quickly, you can be sure that it wasn't just because of what you said that day; it was because she'd been planning to leave already.

Asking her to move in after a few dates was a mistake. You didn't know her then, and you hardly know her now. Keep trying to move on. As hard as it is, it will get easier with time. The next time you meet someone special — and there will indeed be a next time — take things slow.

Dear Annie: My first reaction to the letter "Father Knows Best," about a 40-year tradition of yard care was, "What a nice story!" But then my training as a master gardener kicked in, and I thought, "Why are they raking up all the grass clippings?"

If your lawn is kept regularly mowed, it is much better to leave the clippings where they are to decompose and help to fertilize the lawn naturally. In Florida, we are not allowed to use any chemical fertilizer on grass during the rainy summer months. The clippings help improve our mostly sandy soil by adding organic matter. Save yourself some trouble while doing the right thing for your lawn. Better still, reduce its area and replace it with garden beds and trees, and plants for the birds and the butterflies. — Florida Master Gardener Yard Advisor

Dear Yard Advisor: I missed the mark in my response to "Father Knows Best," as I didn't consider the environmental benefits of leaving lawn clippings be. I heard from many readers about this one. Thank you for setting me straight.

Distant husband

Dear Annie: My husband and I have been together almost six years and married for three. He has two kids, a daughter, 15, and a son, 13. I have always had a pretty good relationship with my stepkids. They are the closest to having kids of my own. Anyway, ever since COVID-19 my marriage seems to be going downhill, and I don't know what to do.

He sleeps on the couch now because he says he can't get a good night's sleep in our bed anymore. I absolutely hate him sleeping there, but he won't budge, even though I said I would buy a new mattress. He says they are too expensive and doesn't see what the problem with sleeping on the couch. His mood has changed. He pushes me away; we hardly ever snuggle; and when he kisses me, it is not the same. He doesn't tell me he loves me as much as he used to. It almost feels like we are roommates who sleep together occasionally.

Before the virus, my husband and his daughter were having some minor issues with each other, and they weren't as close. She would hide stuff from him, and he would find out and get really upset with her. She sees a counselor to help her cope with situations in her life. My husband has gone to a session with her, and he told the counselor that he wants to have a good relationship with his daughter again. Since the virus, their relationship has actually gotten much better, and they are closer than ever. I think it is wonderful that they have bonded again, but now he is all about her, and he pushes me away.

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

He shows her funny things he sees on Facebook. She is the only one who seems to make him smile as if she can do no wrong; he spent the day with her and told her, "Thanks for a great day." They are like two peas in a pod now, and I'm starting to feel jealous. I think it's great they are stronger than ever, but he doesn't thank me for anything anymore; he barely wants to spend any time with me, and he seems to get annoyed by everything that I do. I'm at a loss right now because I don't know how to bring my relationship back to the way it was, and he is NOT the easiest person to talk to.

Everything I say or do seems to set him off, so I mostly just keep to myself. Am I wrong for feeling jealous toward my stepdaughter even though I am happy for them? Is there anything I can do to help my husband realize I miss the way we used to be? — Missing My Husband

Dear Missing My Husband: You are not wrong to feel jealous of your stepdaughter. And you are right to feel happy for them. It is lovely that their relationship was able to grow after some good therapy.

Their relationship is actually not the issue at all. The real issue is the way he is treating you by insisting on sleeping on the couch, snapping at you and always being in a bad mood toward you. That's no way to live. He has it in him to have a lovely relationship with his daughter as well as an intimate and kind relationship with you. Although he is not the easiest person to talk to, that is the only way you are going to resolve this. Suggest that you go see a marriage counselor together. If he wants to make the marriage work, he will. If not, then go see a counselor yourself and figure out your next steps. Regardless of the outcome, communication is key in any marriage. Best of luck to you.
